Concept + Design

If you have an idea and want to make it a reality or if you need help thinking of a concept, EIS designers can find a solution for your most difficult design challenges.

State of the art software enables the visualization and realistic representation of the build and exhibit components before you commit to the design. The visualization process allows for the study of proper spatial planning, graphic representation and legibility requirements.

EIS has rental and purchase stock for every trade show challenge. Whether you need a small portable display or a larger, fully custom exhibit, EIS can help you communicate your message in a functional and dynamic environment that will represent your business in a memorable and exciting way!

Construction + Handling

Specially trained trades people help eliminate unnecessary costs and delays during the preconstruction of your display. EIS has a long list of skilled workers capable of carpentry, electrical work, metalsmithing, prop making, painting and artistic detailing.

The prefabrication of every display creates an opportunity to perfect and detail the display before it is shipped out to ensure the highest level of craftsmanship and engineering. This also enables you to view and approve your exhibit before it is built for your most valued clients.

Exhibit Installation Services Inc. also runs a dedicated truck fleet from tractor trailers to small courier vehicles to aid you with all of your shipping needs.

After properly packing and loading the trucks, our drivers will see that your shipment arrives in a safe and timely manner.

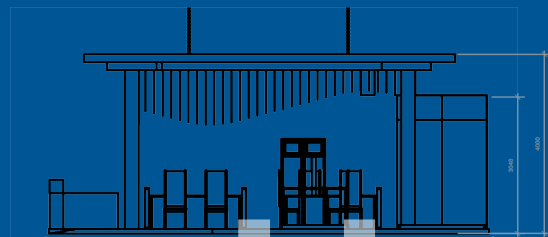

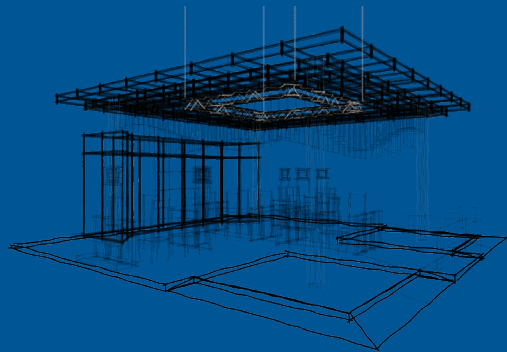

Installation + Dismantle

Specifically trained on-site staff will be on the trade show floor to ensure that your display install goes smoothly from start to finish.

EIS' nationwide and international locations and affiliates allow for strong networking in any city to help you liaise and make those last minute additions to your exhibit environment. You can count on our on-site staff to adapt to any situation that can arise in those crucial hours before the show.
